Challenge#1 : Goal

What I had in mind was to create a website where our ideas can be expressed; it's more like a gimmick than a website used for utility. I want to build something fun and immersive, though simple and not complex. A personal vlog also came to mind, but that would be pretty dull, in my opinion, as I was in the middle of brainstorming. I want this sense of uniqueness that is not also complicated to make, thinking maybe an online freedom wall kind of website would be good.

A freedom wall is typically a physical board where people can share and express their thoughts by writing them on memo paper and pinning them to the board where everyone can see them. The thoughts can be phrases, doodles, or photos, though I will only implement phrases or texts on the online freedom wall that I had in mind. I was thinking, maybe I should place a few rules so that anything inappropriate can be reported. I guess this is the tough part.
